Slaying broadcast online?

Chat partner may be witness Police eager to recover victim's missing laptop

An overseas witness may have seen the last few moments of the life of a young woman during an online chat hours before the woman was found dead Friday, Toronto police say.

Dramatic details of what appear to be the woman's final moments were described yesterday by Det.-Sgt. Frank Skubic.

The still-unidentified young woman's body was found, naked from the waist down, at 11 a.m. Friday by police and emergency workers at an apartment near York University. Police say there were no obvious signs of sexual assault.

Ten hours earlier, the woman had been having a video chat with someone overseas.

The witness, whose name police have not released, heard a knock on the door and saw a man enter the woman's basement apartment.

"There was a physical struggle between the deceased and this male, and the male then turned off the deceased's laptop computer," Skubic said.

Skubic said police have talked to the witness and are trying to find out whether the dead woman's last conversation was recorded.

The man who entered the apartment was white, between 20 and 30, about six feet tall and 175 to 200 pounds with a muscular build, Skubic said. He had brown hair and was wearing a blue crewneck T-shirt. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Liberal incumbent Andrew Kania canvasses for votes in his riding of Brampton West, which has more than 113,000 eligible voters and twice the geographical size than any downtown riding.

Huge riding poses campaign challenges

Brampton West was created in 2003, with 73 per cent of the riding's population coming from Brampton West-Mississauga and 27 per cent from Brampton Centre

Election 2011

"Volunteers are good, calling is good, but in the end, it is (the candidate) people want to meet and chat with."
MITCH WEXLER, CONSERVATIVE CAMPAIGN MANAGER

Steve Dimakarakos doesn't say the words but the longing in his voice makes it obvious.

"Prince Edward Island has four ridings," says Dimakarakos, campaign manager for Andrew Kania, the Liberal candidate in Brampton West. "And P.E.I.'s entire population is less than that of Brampton West, which is one riding."

He smiles, and sighs.

Brampton West, with a population of 170,422 and 113,723 eligible voters, is officially the most populous riding in Canada.

The median age is 33 and there are thousands of young families. Spanning new subdivisions all the way west to the Halton border, Brampton West is also one of the fastest-growing ridings.

For campaign managers, it's a heavy load to carry.

It means many more houses to visit, many more volunteers needed, more lawn signs and more posters to be put up. How to campaign effectively in a riding that large is a conundrum.

"You have to strategize, use every technique you can," says Dimakarakos. "Knock at doors, phone people up and attend multiple events. But believe me, there will still be some voters we won't be able to reach out to."

The Liberal campaign has about 800 volunteers, a small army that spreads out to different neighbourhoods every afternoon.

Mitch Wexler, campaign manager for Kyle Seeback, the Conservative candidate, says how you reach out to various ethnic communities is important.

"This riding is also very diverse," he points out, adding that raises the question of how best to woo voters — at their homes, at events or through phone calls. "It is complicated."

Seeback says the campaign has almost 1,000 volunteers.

NDP's Jagtar Shergill is running his campaign with the help of his family and about 200 volunteers. They have been distributing leaflets for the past few weeks, but he acknowledges it's tough to cover the riding without an army. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Chart creates 'common past'

Documenting history of the Chinese in Canada a way to give young generation a 'sense of belonging'

A handful of prominent Chinese-Canadians gathered Friday in the Richard Charles Lee Canada-Hong Kong Library at the University of Toronto for the presentation of the second chronological chart of Chinese-Canadian history by David Lai.

Senator Vivienne Poy, chancellor emerita at the University of Toronto, gave the opening remarks, saying she hopes initiatives like Lai's chronology will help expand people's understanding of what it means to be a Canadian of Chinese descent.

Featured guest speakers Senator Lillian Dyck and G. Raymond Chang shared histories of their ancestors' move to Canada and the social and economic struggles they experienced.

"To be included you must be inclusive," Chang reflected.

"To be accepted and included you have to include others."

The chart, A Brief Chronology of Chinese Canadian History: From Segregation to Integration, describes the history of the Chinese in Canada from 1788 to 2010. It has been designed as an educational instrument for children who are curious about Canada's history.

"We are reimagining the past," said Henry Yu, associate professor at the University of British Columbia.

"It is vitally important for the young generation to have a sense of belonging. There is a need to create a common past, so we can more forward together."

Lai hopes this project will be an example for other ethnic groups and inspire them to document their own histories.

Politics is women's territory in Halton

Election 2011

ANDREW WALLACE/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Green party candidate Judi Remigio didn't understand part of the question at the all-candidates debate in Halton. She's new to the political game.

Liberal candidate Connie Bowie-Laurin leaned over and helped her out.

"If that's not a picture of women co-operating, I don't know what is," Remigio said.

In Halton, the Green, Liberal, Conservative and NDP candidates for the federal election are all women. It is one of two ridings in the GTA where sisters are doin' it for themselves. Etobicoke North also has its major parties represented by females.

In Halton, it has meant fewer personal attacks and more policy discussion. The debate was "very civilized" and "pleasant," said Marlene Bristol, the president of the Oakville branch of the Canadian Federation of University Women, the debate co-organizer.

Bristol would know. A few days after the Halton debate, her organization hosted a debate in the Oakville riding, where all the candidates are men.

Bullets stray close to home

RICK EGLINTON/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶Ted Wilson stands behind bullet hole in his garage window.

Ted Wilson came home recently to find two windows shot out in his 150-year-old farmhouse, a bullet hole in his truck and a bullet from a high-powered rifle outside his bedroom window.

"On any Saturday morning it sounds like a war going on in back of me," says the horse breeder, who lives just north of Port Perry. "This situation is extremely dangerous, frustrating and very, very frightening."

The shooting is coming from a makeshift target practice range in the provincially owned Nonquon conservation area, a little more than one kilometre from his home. While gunshots have been a familiar sound for years, they recently escalated when the area was promoted online as a great place to shoot, neighbours say.

"It's a scary situation," says Wilson's wife, Kipp. "You don't want to be outside."

Ted, a retired teacher, fears for passing motorists on Simcoe Street as well as hikers and schoolchildren using the education centre that's within shooting distance of the practice range.

Farmers say they've complained to the police, the Ministry of Natural Resources and local bylaw officials, but so far no one is taken responsibility.

Family finds some relief

Canadian mom fled quake-struck Japan to protect fragile health of 2-year-old son ◗ Buoyed by public support while frustrated by bureaucracy

DAVID COOPER/TORONTO STAR

Two-year-old Maleek, burbling through his breathing tube with both hands pressed against a window in the shelter he now calls home, is more interested in the late-spring snowfall outside than the tale his mom is telling.

Of the trials Mairead Cavanagh had endured for him and the ones that lie ahead, he is blissfully unaware.

"The whole world is going to open up for Maleek. That's what's keeping me going," says Cavanagh, with Maleek's brother, eight-month-old Latif, curled asleep on her shoulder.

"All kinds of people in the community have been amazing, people I've never even met."
MAIREAD CAVANAGH

Cavanagh, a Canadian, fled the family's home in quake-struck Japan a month ago with her two children and her husband, Abed Lubambula, arriving alive but with no clothes, money or place to stay.

Maleek's condition, subglottic stenosis, means he breathes through a tracheostomy tube and requires vigilant care to keep his airway clear. The perils of post-quake Japan threatened his life. So Cavanagh and her husband abandoned their possessions and the new business they had recently sunk their savings into to come to Toronto.

Now, sitting in the Scarborough family shelter where the four share a single room, Cavanagh swings between gratitude for those who have helped her get here and frustration about the bureaucratic tangles she must slowly unravel to settle the family and give Maleek the full care he needs. Site significantly curbs overdose deaths: Study

Deaths from drug overdose dropped dramatically in Vancouver's troubled Downtown Eastside after Insite, Canada's only supervised injection site, opened in 2003, according to major new research on the controversial facility.

Public health experts say the body of research on Insite, further supported by the overdose findings, makes it clear Toronto could benefit from a supervised consumption facility.

The study shows overdose deaths declined by 35 per cent after Insite opened its doors, a finding that experts say answers the final key question of whether the facility provides public health and community benefit.

Previous studies have shown Insite has, among other things, got drug use off city streets, saved the health-care system millions of dollars, and reduced the spread of infectious disease, including HIV.

Prime minister talks talk on human smuggling to try to strike a chord with voters B.C. has seen two ships full of Tamil migrants arrive on its coast

Stephen Harper courted immigrant voters and tough-on-crime supporters in one final sweep through the Vancouver area yesterday before heading north to Yellowknife.

The prime minister talked up his promised Tory crackdown on human smugglers, using the scenic British Columbia backdrop to once again paint Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff and the other opposition parties as soft on Asian "snakeheads" and other international criminals.

Harper pledged to reintroduce Bill C-49, which would impose stringent penalties on human smuggling and give law enforcement agencies better tools to go after those who run smuggling operations.

"Smugglers try to bring people to this country ahead of others who try to follow our immigration rules."
PRIME MINISTER STEPHEN HARPER

Harper travelled briefly to Delta, B.C., south of Vancouver, to get his second look in less than a year at the MV Ocean Lady, the ship that brought 76 Tamil migrants to Canadian shores in October 2009.

With Ignatieff also campaigning in the province yesterday, Harper went on the offensive.

"We had hoped to have this law in place before the summer, before the high season of human smuggling begins. Unfortunately, it has been opposed by Mr. Ignatieff and his partners in the NDP and the Bloc Québécois," Harper told a rally of supporters in Richmond, B.C.

Harper has surrounded himself with visible minority candidates and supporters in his two days of rallies across Vancouver's Lower Mainland. He is trying to break the three-way deadlock that exists across the province between the Tories, NDP and Liberals.

Layton's ailing hip still an issue for NDP

The NDP campaign has been hip-checked.

Nancy Layton was heard telling Canary Cycles owner Joe Planchat that her brother "had a hip replacement."

Planchat later confirmed those were the words she used.

But yesterday at a campaign stop in Halifax, Layton told reporters his sister was mistaken.

"It's not a hip replacement. There's definitely some metal in there to reenforce the bone," he said.

"Some confusion. Interfamily confusion. I'll have to send her the X-ray."

Layton went under the knife last month to repair a hairline fracture that turned into a full-blown broken bone.

He said he's not sure what caused the fracture in the first place.

That Layton's ailing hip still comes up at all is evidence of the struggle the New Democrats face as the campaign enters its fourth week.

Iggy on offence with health care

Michael Ignatieff is upping the ante on health care, saying a Liberal government would summon Canada's premiers and territorial leaders for a health-care summit meeting within 60 days of taking office.

It's urgent that talks get underway on new health-care funding arrangements and "system-wide reforms" to secure medicare's future in Canada, the Liberal leader said yesterday.

Ignatieff accused Stephen Harper of neglecting medicare during his time as prime minister, with no new spending and no talks with the provinces.

"Harper gets into government and he doesn't take any leadership in health for five years — nothing," Ignatieff said in Vancouver.

"He puts the six per cent in, but there's no leadership to improve the system, to work together to make the system work more effectively."

Ignatieff has enlisted the help of former prime minister Paul Martin, who negotiated the country's current health accord in 2004, to bolster the party's image as strong managers of the country's economy.

The Liberals, Conservatives and New Democrats have all promised to maintain a six-per-cent annual increase in health-care transfers to the provinces, even after the current agreement expires in 2014.

Homes and businesses were badly damaged Saturday by a severe storm system that whipped across North Carolina, bringing flash floods, hail and reports of tornadoes from the western hills to the streets of Raleigh.

At least 45 killed in storms

More than 250,000 people go without power in North Carolina ◐ Outages to linger at least until today

Rescue crews searched for survivors in wind-blasted landscapes yesterday in North Carolina, the state hardest hit by a storm system that spawned dozens of tornadoes from Oklahoma to Virginia and left at least 45 people dead.

The spring storm, North Carolina's deadliest in two decades, spun off 62 tornadoes in that state alone Saturday night. Eleven people were confirmed dead in rural Bertie County, county manager Zee Lamb said.

Another four were confirmed dead in Bladen County, bringing the state's death toll to at least 21.

In the capital city of Raleigh, three family members died in a mobile home park, said Wake County spokeswoman Sarah Williamson-Baker.

The storm claimed its first lives Thursday night in Oklahoma, then roared through Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia. Authorities have said seven died in Arkansas, seven in Alabama, two in Oklahoma, and one in Mississippi.

"He did two tours of duty in Iraq and the scene was worse than he ever saw in Iraq — that's pretty devastating."

Depiction of Obama as an ape 'drips with racism': Official

PABLO MARTINEZ MONSIVAIS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Barack Obama

A Southern California Republican party official is under fire after allegations she sent an email that included an altered photo depicting U.S. President Barack Obama as an ape.

An email reportedly sent by party central committee member Marilyn Davenport shows an image, posed like a family portrait, of chimpanzee parents and child, with Obama's face artificially superimposed on the child. Text beneath the photo reads, "Now you know why no birth certificate."

Davenport, when reached by the Associated Press, said she would provide a written statement with her response, but several hours later she had not issued one.

The alternative newspaper OC Weekly first reported the story, and was told by Davenport that the email was "just an Internet joke." She also asked the Weekly, "You're not going to make a big deal about this are you?"

Scott Baugh, chairman of the Republican Party of Orange County, said Saturday he wants an ethics investigation into the incident.

"It's just highly inappropriate, it's a despicable message, it drips with racism and I think she should step down from the committee," he said.

Baugh said it might be several days before it's known whether the ethics committee will agree to investigate Davenport.

At the very least, he said, Davenport should be apologizing for what she's done rather than attacking whoever leaked the email to media, referring to an email Davenport sent after the story broke calling on "the coward" who leaked the email to come forward.

Gadhafi forces advance on rebel-held city

Attack comes a day after at least eight people were killed and 27 wounded as forces loyal to Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi fired rockets at rebels: Officials

Moammar Gadhafi's forces shelled the eastern edge of Ajdabiya yesterday, bringing the fight to the front-line rebel town that has been the scene of fierce fighting in recent weeks.

Loud booms rocked the city throughout the morning, sending a column of cars — some with rebel fighters, others with families — fleeing north through a thick sandstorm to more securely held rebel territory.

Rebel forces fired back with rockets and no government forces entered the city, said rebel fighter Awad Sathi.

Rivers run through it and over it

Province reeling in wake of largest flood on record

ELISHA DACEY
TORONTO@METRONEWS.CA

About half of Manitoba is impacted by overland flooding and the waters are still rising, provincial officials said.

While the current flooding is not as devastating as 1997's "Flood of the Century," it's now the largest on record.

Usually, the biggest story in any given flood year is the Red River, but this spring it's the Assiniboine.

provincial and municipal roads are closed due to overland water.

683
evacuees were forced to flee their homes.

The Red's largest tributary is experiencing water flows not seen in 35 years. That's when it recorded its worst flood, said Steve Topping, Manitoba Water Stewardship's executive director.

And should the Assiniboine crest at the same time as the Red, it could impact several properties inside the City of Winnipeg.

Officials are forecasting it to crest around the end of April.

‘Culture of shopping’ keeps U.S. prices low

Canadians say they resent paying more for goods, but they don’t go to nearly the lengths Americans do to score a deal, experts say

With a loonie worth more than a U.S. dollar, bargains abound for Canadian shoppers who hit the stores south of the border.

The reasons for the price differences defy easy explanation. But some suggest an unwillingness of Canadians to spend the same time as Americans to hunt for a bargain may contribute to the gap.

“Shopping seems to be a very big part of what goes on in the U.S. People go down to Florida, to Georgia, to the southern U.S. and one of the activities that you do there are tours going to outlet malls,” says David Soberman, a marketing professor at the University of Toronto.

“If you’re wondering why prices are lower, it might be part of the explanation.”

Soberman suggests if Canadians want bargains, they must change their shopping habits. That means doing a bit of research to find the best possible price.

“What you need to do is check all of the retail stores where you can buy the product (you want) and patronize the store that has the lowest price.”
DAVID SOBERMAN, UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Michael Mulvey, marketing professor at the University of Ottawa, says the larger middle class in Canada may also play a role in the price gap.

“When you have a larger number of people that are struggling, it does put pressures on to bring prices down,” he said.

“Wal-Mart is the place that people go to … partly because they don’t feel ripped off when they go there.”

A stroke of genius

Two University of Maine researchers may have solved the problem of “golf ball pollution”: What happens when a ball goes flying off the green to land in a lake or the ocean. Engineering Prof. David Neivandt and bioengineering major Alex Caddell are experimenting with a golf ball made from ground lobster shell. Neivandt says the biodegradable balls are intended for use on cruise ships or at driving ranges near bodies of water.

Beijing boosts reserve — again

The People’s Bank of China has ordered most of the country’s banks to raise the amount of money they hold in reserve by 0.5 per cent, yet another attempt by Beijing to tamp down inflation. The measure means large financial institutions will have to keep 20.5 per cent of their deposits in reserve. This is China’s fourth reserve increase this year. Inflation in the world’s second-largest economy surged last month to a 32-month high of 5.4 per cent.

Toronto firm in 'epic' battle with tech giant i4i to fight Microsoft over patent infringement in U.S. Supreme Court ◐ Represents future of patent law

A battle between a small Canadian company and software giant Microsoft is going to the U.S. Supreme Court today in a case that could challenge how patent laws protect exclusive technology.

Toronto-based i4i has been fighting Microsoft in a multimillion-dollar patent infringement suit since 2007. Two lower U.S. courts have ruled that Microsoft used i4i's technology in some versions of its Word software program, with a Texas jury awarding the company $290 million US in damages in 2009.

But Microsoft has fought the ruling, and is expected to challenge current standards for overturning patents.

Loudon Owen, chairman of i4i, wants the court to uphold U.S. patent laws, which he said require "clear and convincing" evidence for overturning a patent. He believes that exclusive intellectual property needs to be protected for others to use.

"The patent you're granted has very little meaning if it's not enforceable. Why have a patent if it's useless?" he said.

Patent expert Alexander Poltorak said the case represents a turning point. "Their fight is somewhat of an epic for the future of U.S. patent law," Poltorak said, adding that if i4i loses it would be "devastating for the entire intellectual property business in the United States." GROWING A COMMUNITY

For a small group of food fanatics, Saturday was supposed to mark the beginning of the spring growing season.

Sadly, the clouds opened up and torrential rains poured down, delaying the assembled at 205 Crawford St. from getting to work on their little piece of land at the edge of Trinity Bellwoods Park.

So, instead of toiling away in the dirt, I sat down with four of the five women who make up The Laboratory, an impromptu gardening collective in the city's west end. United by a shared passion for the Earth's natural bounty and brought together by Toronto's yoga and meditation community, these beautiful, deeply intelligent young women are the grassroots ambassadors of a deliciously simple idea — that growing your own food is oh so good.

Over a cup of fresh ginger tea, we chatted about a wide range of topics, from the politics of food to the socio-economic factors of health to the importance of local horticulture in the face of impending peak oil.

Elise Robinsong, a poet and a writing teacher, spoke eloquently about urban farming's promise, while chiropractor and acupuncturist Carina Löf made pointed references to food sovereignty policies in Cuba and Venezuela. Kate Leinweber, a bubbly holistic nutritionist, spoke on the relationship between wellness and diet and the joys of fermentation and pickling, and yoga teacher and musical jack of all trades Amy Manusow interjected every so often with a wry comment, a playful sparkle always alight in her eyes.

Even young Arlan Stone, a seven-year-old who stopped by for a visit, schooled me on the history of LEGO, a vintage police car piece in his hand.

Though each woman had a distinct point of view, one thing was abundantly clear: At the essence of The Laboratory is a desire to cultivate not only produce of all sorts, but also a grounded sense of community in Toronto's modern, metropolitan world. While the 600-square-foot patch in Robinsong and Löf's backyard will give birth to a wonderful array of eggplants, peppers and watermelons, once spring is finally sprung it will serve as a place for locals to gather, too.

These five enterprising women want to create a kind of urban farming movement if they can — inspiring passersby not through preaching their ideals but through leading by example. Their purpose goes beyond just the fruits (ahem) of their labour. The Laboratory is as much a paradigm through which to engage the world as it is a means to produce the nourishment that sustains it.

In the lasting words of Voltaire's Candide: "We all must cultivate our own garden."

Worth mentioning

LONDON. Britain's government has begun the process of reviewing the ancient, discriminatory rules of royal succession, so if Prince William and Kate Middleton's first child is a girl she would eventually become queen.

The current rule that puts boys ahead of their sisters "would strike most people as a little old-fashioned," Deputy Prime Minister Nick Clegg said on Saturday.

The Cabinet Office said the government accepts that some aspects of the succession rule "could be discriminatory." It said the government has started discussions with British Commonwealth nations that would be directly affected by any change because they recognize the British monarch as their head of state, but declined to release details of those talks.

William is second in line to the throne after his father, Prince Charles, who is Queen Elizabeth II's first-born child.

Charles' sister Anne is lower in the line of succession than her younger brothers Andrew and Edward.

WEIRD NEWS

Don't stop to smell this flower

Spring is in the air, and that means an unpleasant smell for one greenhouse at Ohio State University.

A 2.4-metre tall rainforest plant, known as a "corpse flower" because it smells like rotting flesh, is getting ready to bloom.

The Columbus Dispatch reports greenhouse co-ordinator Joan Leonard has been growing the flowers since 2001, and this would be the first of five to bloom.

Leonard says smelling the Amorphophallus titanium for the first time will be the culmination of a decade of work. But it will be a quick experience because the flower withers after a day or two.

She expects the bloom to open in May, revealing its umbrella-sized "petals." When that happens, the university will have visiting hours to give people a peek at the rare plant.

Will and Kate get a TV movie

Hollywood is looking to cash in on the Royal Wedding with a raft of made-for-tv movies The resemblance of the on-screen Kate and William to the real-life version is questionable, as are the set locations

▶ Camilla Luddington, right, and Nico Evers-Swindell play the title characters in the Lifetime TV movie William & Kate.

While they prepare for their walk down the aisle April 29, Prince William and Kate Middleton can rest assured that their romance has earned the Lifetime Television seal of approval, as the U.S. cable channel will be debuting William & Kate, a made-for-TV movie about the royal couple's courtship, tonight, 11 days before they tie the knot.

William & Kate chronicles the early days of the couple's long courtship, including their first meetings at the University of St. Andrews and later coping with the intense media scrutiny that comes with dating a member of the royal family. "I love the you no one gets to see but me," the on-screen version of Middleton gushes to her royal beau.

Finding actors who look anything like the real-life happy couple was apparently too much of a challenge, as stars Camilla Luddington and Nico Evers-Swindell's similarities to Kate Middleton and Prince William end at their height difference and hair colour — though even here, Evers-Swindell has a bit too much going on, resembling more a ginger version of Twilight star Robert Pattinson than the thinning-haired second-in-line to the British throne.

The actors aren't the only ones straining to pass themselves off as their British counterparts: The Lifetime movie was filmed entirely in Los Angeles. Scenes at St. Andrews were actually shot on UCLA's sunny Westwood, Calif., campus, as the university's grounds were some of the few places in the area that looked "old" enough to pass for the 600-year-old school.

Resemblance issues aside, Luddington and Evers-Swindell certainly aren't short on enthusiasm. "Lifetime viewers are going to get a great love story," Luddington says of the movie. "If you're romantic at heart, you're going to love it."

Lifetime is also debuting a six-part documentary, Royal Wedding of a Lifetime, prior to the big nuptials at Westminster Abbey.

Another U.S. cable network, the Hallmark Channel, is also getting in on royal action, with their own film about the couple, William & Kate: a Love Story, that won't debut until August. Perhaps the longer lead time will allow them to find actors with more of a resemblance to the real William and Kate.

Not the first royal TV movie

Prince William is the latest Royal to get the made-for-TV treatment, but he's certainly not the first. In fact, his parents' wedding was chronicled in not one but two films — and one even spawned a not-too-pleasant sequel.

The Royal Romance of Charles and Diana (1982)
Starring Christopher Baines as Prince Charles and Catherine Oxenberg, a cousin of the real Charles, as Diana Spencer, the film was probably most notable for featuring Olivia de Havilland as the Queen Mother.

Charles and Diana: A Royal Love Story (1982)
The second film rushed onto TV screens in the year following Charles and Diana's nuptials. This American-made version starred David Robb as Charles and Caroline Bliss as Diana. As for notable supporting cast members, Sir Christopher Lee stepped in as Prince Philip.

Charles and Diana: Unhappily Ever After (1992)
Despite her real-life bloodline to the royal family, Oxenberg reprised her role as Princess Diana for this "sequel" to The Royal Romance of Charles and Diana, chronicling in pulpy soap opera detail the dissolution of Charles and Diana's marriage.

Trump delays Apprentice decision

Donald Trump says he has put off agreeing to an extension of his Celebrity Apprentice reality show while he weighs a presidential bid.

The real estate mogul and potential Republican contender says he told NBC on Friday he could not commit to a three-year contract extension for the series until he decides whether he's running.

Trump spoke at an event at his Mar-a-Lago estate on Palm Beach. He offered familiar messages questioning U.S. President Barack Obama's birthplace.

He also said the U.S. should be entitled to Iraqi oil and praised the ultra-conservative tea party.

Trump says he's encouraged by polls showing him with a strong following and says he'll make an announcement on his campaign plans before June.

Metro recently interviewed Game of Thrones author George R.R. Martin

BRAYDEN SIMMS
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS NEW YORK

GETTY IMAGES

▶ George R.R. Martin

In transferring these epic works from the page to the screen here, have you had to make many changes?
Well, of course, I didn't actually do it. So the challenges here were largely those faced by the show runners and the screenwriters, David Benioff and D.B. Weiss.

But they have done quite a faithful adaptation, I think. There are differences certainly. They've added a few new scenes. They've cut things, scenes here and there and certainly lines.
In any sort of television or film adaptation, you don't have the space that you have in prose. But for the most part ... it is my story and it's the same characters and the same principle major events.

I think my fans are going to be very happy with how faithful it is. Most of the changes I've seen are clearly been made just to accommodate the budget, accommodate the limits of running time.

I keep reading all over the place about how you started writing these books because they were un-filmable, and you wanted to go to amazing places like this. Well, now, it's been filmed. Are you kind still pinching yourself?
I am, actually. Sometimes I think I've fallen through a rabbit hole and I'm in Wonderland here. It's amazing not only that they could film, but, of course, the amount of attention that they're getting. And, you know, the cast that we've assembled, the global thing, it all has me pinching myself.

Could you lay out for us how big of a participant you were in putting this on?
I'm going to be writing one episode per season if the show goes forward.

There's part of me that would like to write more than one episode per season, but I have to finish the books and the books, of course, are enormous and they take a lot of time.

I've been working on this last one for more than five years and I'm only now, you know, at the end of that.

And then there's two more beyond that.

So Dance With Dragons will come out on July 12th, but I've got to go pretty quickly and start the next book.

Recalling Nirvana

Dave Grohl ready to embrace his Nirvana days once again ◗ New Foo Fighters album features contributions from key members of Grohl's past

CHRIS YOUNG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Dave Grohl of The Foo Fighters

Try as he might, it's been near impossible for Dave Grohl to convince some critics and music fans that his legacy as a songwriter is worth more than his years drumming for the seminal band Nirvana.

Never mind that it's been 17 long years since the death of grunge icon Kurt Cobain, and that Grohl has penned hit after hit.

From the Foo Fighters first major single This Is a Call to alternative radio staples Best of You, All My Life, Monkey Wrench, My Hero and Everlong, few other bands have been as commercially popular and prolific.

In fact, the Foo Fighters have grown so big that Grohl jokes he's now considered just about as uncool as it gets in the rock universe, at least among cynical hipster types.

"You meet kids in younger underground rock bands and I'm like Bon Jovi to those people," Grohl, 42, laughed during an interview this week in Toronto.

So it's somewhat surprising that Grohl has decided to unabashedly reflect on his Nirvana days again, both on the new Foo Fighters album Wasting Light and in the band's documentary Back And Forth.

For years, Grohl has been waiting for the right time to work with some of his old Nirvana collaborators again, but until now had been too sensitive about the idea.

"It seemed there had to be some distance between (Nirvana and the Foo Fighters) and for years I've really had to balance that to give Nirvana the respect it deserves. I wouldn't be here if it weren't for Nirvana," Grohl said.

Wasting Light was recorded with producer Butch Vig, who worked on the classic Nevermind, and former Nirvana bass player Krist Novoselic is seen in the documentary playing on the track I Should Have Known. At the tail end of the movie, Vig hypothesizes that the song is about the Nirvana days and Cobain, which Grohl doesn't deny.

"When I first started writing that song it was about someone else that I was involved with and at the end of the day I said to myself, I should have known that this was going to happen," Grohl explains in the movie.

This week, Grohl said enough time has passed that he can acknowledge his Nirvana history and embrace it.

"You just have to kind of shut off that switch that keeps you concerned about what other people think," he said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

New album

- Wasting Light doesn't deviate much from the Foo Fighters' winning formula of hooky, straightforward loud rock but what's different this time is the way the album was recorded.
- Rather than recording in the band's state-of-the art studio, they recorded in Grohl's garage on old-fashioned analog tape, eschewing the digital techniques commonly used today.

Actor taken into custody after alleged drunken row with wife

Nicolas Cage was arrested in New Orleans over the weekend on charges of domestic violence and disturbing the peace, according to TMZ.

Sources say a "very drunk" Cage and his wife, Alice Kim, were arguing loudly outside, prompting a taxi driver to alert the police. When they arrived, Cage reportedly taunted the cops with, "Why don't you just arrest me?" Eventually, the officers obliged.

Kim is reportedly denying any domestic violence occurred and is not planning to press charges.

Dog the Bounty Hunter bails out Cage after arrest

After his arrest, Nicolas Cage got some help from an unlikely pal: Reality star Dog the Bounty Hunter reportedly posted Cage's $11,000 bail, according to E! News.

"I am a truly dedicated fan of Mr. Cage and will not be granting any interviews about my client as I wish to respect his privacy," Dog, whose real name is Duane Chapman, says.

"This is what I do for a living. There are two sides of my job: I release my clients after they have been arrested; and pick them up if they don't show up in court. I do not believe the latter will be the case for Mr. Cage."

ALETHEA SHIRILAN-HOWLETT

METRO WORLD NEWS

Does this movie look good or bad and why?

SONY

Smurfs: I think the movie looks colourful. But the lines, are they supposed to be funny?

20TH CENTURY FOX

Rio: It looks more good than bad. Kids really like Pedro, the red bird. Kids at my school are already copying his phrases.

TRACY BENNETT/COLUMBIA PICTURES

The Zookeeper: It looks better than The Smurfs, but I wouldn't give it a solid thumbs up.

DISNEY

Winnie the Pooh: It looks funny. Good job Disney!

DREAMWORKS

Kung Fu Panda 2: Awesome, think I want to see it. This is a great movie for your kids.

DISNEY/PIXAR

Cars 2: Looks pretty good, I like it.

Do you think kids will want to see this? Why?

Yes, but not because it looks good. It is because it is their parents' beloved characters and in 3-D!

The bird versus monkey war makes kids fans in seconds.

Yes. Little kids love talking animals. Movie companies love to make movies about kids' favourite subjects.

Yes, it seems better than I thought, but kids might look at it and say, "I don't want to watch another Winnie the Pooh movie."

Of course! Who wouldn't want to see a talking panda doing Kung Fu with Jack Black's voice?

Kids loved the movie Cars in 2006. What makes you think they wouldn't like this one?

What do you hope happens to the main characters?

I hope they go to Central Park.

I hope Rio gets a chance to swim in the ocean.

I hope the monkeys make the zookeeper eat bananas and I hope he can ride on an elephant.

I hope Owl stops being so bossy.

I hope the characters are the same as in the first one.

I just hope Sally comes back. In the trailer it doesn't look like she does.

What are the chances you'll see it in the theatre?

I'd say about 27 per cent. It doesn't sound as funny as its supposed to look.

Probably a good 65 per cent. It is probably going to win awards.

A 41 per cent chance. I don't think it looks quite funny enough.

Maybe a 99 per cent. It looks pretty good!

Probably 100 per cent. It looks cool!

100 per cent. My Dad has figured it. Kids are gonna love this. It is a 10-year-old boy's dream.

Perfect for Passover

Baked goods for the Jewish holiday must be made without flour This Honey Coconut Cake uses alternatives

MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ This Honey Coconut Cake replaces flour with a blend of matzo meal and ground nuts.

To be suitable for Passover, baked goods must be made without flour.

This cake replaces it with a blend of matzo meal and ground nuts that then are flavoured with honey, coconut, orange zest and spices.

The result is a satisfyingly syrupy-sticky cake that is wonderfully delicious.

Honey Coconut Cake

Preparation:

1. Heat the oven to 150 C (300 F). Coat an 20-cm (8-inch) springform pan with cooking spray, then line the bottom with parchment paper.
2. In the bowl of a food processor, pulse together the almonds, coconut and matzo until the mixture is reduced to coarse crumbs.
3. In the bowl of a stand mixer, combine the eggs, honey, sugar and salt. Beat with the whisk attachment on high until very thick, about 7 to 8 minutes. Stir in the zest, cinnamon and cardamom. Fold the coconut and almond mixture into the eggs in 2 batches. Pour the mixture into the prepared pan. Bake until a toothpick inserted at the centre comes out with a few moist crumbs, 35 to 40 minutes.
4. While the cake bakes, make the syrup. In a small saucepan over medium-high, combine the water, sugar, honey, orange juice and cardamom. Bring to a boil and cook, stirring, until the sugar is dissolved. Set aside.
5. When the cake is finished baking, use a skewer to poke holes across the surface of the cake. Pour 160 ml (2/3 cup) of syrup over the cake. Allow to cool.
6. To serve, run a knife along the outside of the pan and remove the sides of the pan. Transfer to a serving platter and remove the bottom of the pan. Peel off the parchment paper if it doesn't come off by itself. Top with the toasted coconut and serve with the extra syrup, rewarming if desired.

▶ Gwyneth Paltrow's new cookbook is filled with family recipes and pays tribute to her dad.

Paltrow showcases her culinary skills

The actress and newly minted singer releases My Father's Daughter The book features recipes & celebrates family

Surely Gwyneth Paltrow can't do everything well: She's yet to enter the field of medicine or play professional sports, for example.

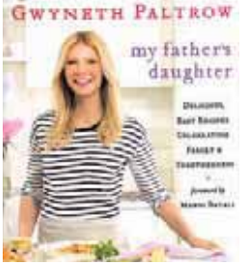
But the list of things the Oscar-winning actress, mother, lifestyle guru and newly minted singer can't do seems to be dwindling.

At a recent dinner party, she proved herself a master at yet another role — domestic goddess.

"I am just exploding with joy for her because this is something that gives her tremendous satisfaction," said Paltrow's mother, actress Blythe Danner, as she watched her daughter move about in an apron, playing host to a crowd that included A-list celebrity friends like Jay-Z, Jerry Seinfeld, Cameron Diaz, Alex Rodriguez, Martha Stewart and Paltrow's husband, Chris Martin of Coldplay.

It was a dinner party in celebration of her new cookbook, My Father's Daughter, sponsored by One Kings Lane.

The book is filled with family recipes and pays tribute to Paltrow's dad,



Bruce, who passed away in 2002. She credits him with teaching her how to cook.

Paltrow took a break from her hostess duties at the event to talk about her culinary endeavour.

This book pays tribute to your father. What are some of your fondest memories of cooking with him?
Sort of just the togetherness of being next to him. We didn't talk a lot when we were cooking. We were very concentrated. It was that proximity. Sometimes he would make a joke or just throw out some hilarious criticism but in a sweet way. It was just being next to each other.

What are some of your favourite cooking traditions that you shared with your father that you now enjoy with your own children?
I think the importance of eating together as a family and making homemade food that is nourishing and good for you. It is such a nice time because my dad used to really talk to us when we ate dinner and see what we thought about things.

People see you as this celebrity, but do you really cook?
I do. Every day. I think it is really important to make food yourself. I think it is so ingrained. I don't really think about it. I will just get a bunch of ingredients and cook whatever is around. I am kind of always on the fly making stuff. I think it is such a part of who I am that I don't even think about it now.

You have your own website and now there are reports that you are coming out with your own magazine. Is this true?
It is not true at all.

RECYCLING IDEAS ON VHS MOVIES

Do you have a suggestion for recycling VHS tapes Maureen of Port Moody, B.C.

Oh VHS tapes; those were the days. If the ones you own are too damaged to view and hence donate or give away, recycling is an option. The Recycling Council of BC has a great website (rcbc.bc.ca) with an easy-to-use search engine, or what they call the RCBC Recyclepedia. All you have to do is select the type of material you want to recycle, "electronic," then the item, "VHS tapes," and select the city you live in. It's that simple.

The bad news from the Recycling Council of BC is that "VHS and audio cassette tapes are difficult to recycle because the ribbon of tape cannot be recycled, only the plastic portion. Some companies request that you take the ribbon out of the cassette before you drop them off." I won't keep you in suspense; the results for your area are: London Drugs — Green Deal Recycling Program at greendeal.ca or Pacific Mobile Depots at pacific mobiledepots.com.

Given RCBC's cautionary note, I'd suggest calling ahead before you start pulling out reels of tape. I'm not aware of chemicals found on or leaching from the tape. You could always wear gloves if you're concerned.

Live outside of B.C? Check out earth911.com.

Eco-friendly wedding

When it comes to your wedding look to the backyard

Depending on your petal of choice, wedding flowers can drastically weigh down your budget — especially if they're not in season or grown locally.

Rather than paying for exports, why not follow in the footsteps of Kate Middleton (who will have an arrangement full of myrtle and other petals) and walk down the aisle with a gorgeous bouquet comprised of flowers and herbs?

Take a peak at your own garden or head to your local florist and don't be afraid to ask for seasonal petals.

As for herbs, lavender, basil, mint and thyme are easily found at the grocery store, and will not only look beautiful in a mixed bouquet but smell fragrant too.

CLEANING UP IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

She was fired from her first job — on the first day she reported to work. Her employers told the new immigrant from Hong Kong that her English language skills weren't strong enough.

This was only a brief setback for the determined young woman.

Today, the successful married mother of two is running her own business, calling the shots and inspiring others to follow her lead.

Studying economics at York University, Amanda went on to land a job at IBM in client relations. "I talked to a lot of business owners and really got inspired," she said.

Months of research followed. She came up with a business plan and decided to start her own cleaning company.

Her mother was incredulous. "Are you nuts? You're leaving your six-figure job at IBM to clean toilets?"

Now four years later, the award-winning entrepreneur has 20 employees at Clean4Me and is looking into franchising her successful operation.

"Let go of your fears, doubts and disbeliefs. Be courageous, embrace change and start believing in your dreams," she said.

Amanda Collucci did and now she's her own boss. Her mom is proud.

Amanda's tips

Here's some advice from the award-winning entrepreneur on what helps drive business success.

- Know your purpose and understand why you're in business.
- Understand the industry and what resources you will need.
- Find a mentor or advisor. It will accelerate your success.
- Believe in yourself and conquer your fears. Have faith and know that you can get through any challenges.
- Think big, dream big and play big. Don't set limits.

Turning internships into job opportunities

STUDENT VOICE

CARLA KAVINTA
TALENTEGG.CA

I recently got hired as an intern at KBS+P, a marketing and advertising firm in downtown Toronto. Although I have learned a great deal from sitting in on meetings and completing project tasks, the most valuable and practical skills I have learned were from having one-on-one meetings with executives in the company.

I was surprised by not only their willingness, but also their eagerness to share their knowledge and experience.

What shocked me most was that these senior people approached me to share their knowledge of the industry, as well as provide their advice on career goals and how to succeed in the advertising business.

They have continually followed up with practical advice and have generously shared an ample amount of reading material to explore the industry further.

Most importantly, they have made a genuine commitment to educating their interns, knowing that we could potentially be the future of the company.

Their sincere interest in my career development has inspired me to work for the firm and pushed me to work hard for the company.

Where Carla is now

I am currently finishing my last year in the commerce program at the University of Toronto. I was accepted to a global internship program for the summer and hope to return to KBS+P in the fall.

Key take-aways from Carla's school-to-work transition

- Take on internships while you're still in school to gain work experience.
- Ask senior executives for their career advice — they've been where you are and know what it takes to succeed.
- Use your new connections to help you land a job after graduation. If you go above and beyond during your internship, they're more likely to hire you after graduation.

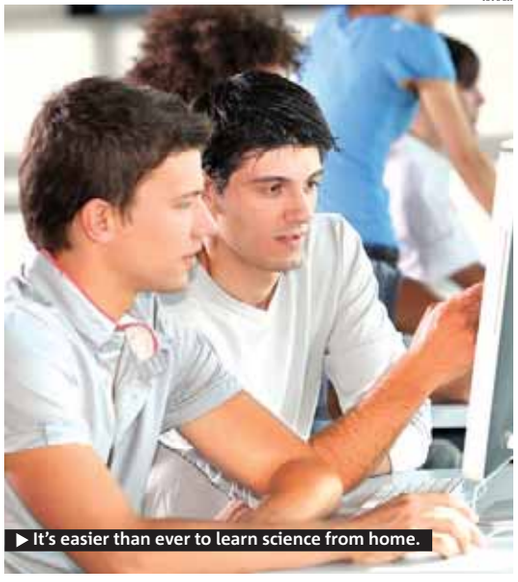
Learning science from a distance

- Technology allows distance learners to perform labs at home, such as virtually dissecting a frog online
- Courses now include digital components such as videos, online discussion forums and interactive tutorials

ISTOCK



▶ It's easier than ever to learn science from home.

One of the questions that parents and students often have about distance education high school courses is concerning that the practical application of knowledge, such as lab work, are fulfilled. This is especially true for those considering a science course like biology or chemistry.

With today's technology, distance education courses have evolved from reading black and white text about labs in a text book to participating in online interactive activities.

"As studying at a distance becomes readily available to anyone looking to earn high school credits or to upgrade skills on their own time, it is vital that the student gets the full learning experience," says Sarah Irwin, managing director of the Independent Learning Centre (ILC.org).

"For example, learning Grade 9 science requires the dissection of a frog. Our interactive tools allow students to virtually perform a full dissection online, in the comfort of their home, library or wherever they choose to study."

Reaching far beyond textbooks, modern instructional designers include various methodologies to engage students and support learning.

A learner studying independently can now expect courses to include digital components, such as videos and news clips, online discussion forums and interactive tutorials, creating a learning experience that entertains and engages while educating, earning credentials and meeting the expectations of the curriculum.

Mike Fisher broke a tie at 10:21 of the third period, and the Nashville Predators took advantage of Bobby Ryan sitting out to beat the Anaheim Ducks 4-3 yesterday for a 2-1 lead in the first-round series.

The NHL suspended Ryan for two games Saturday for stomping Predators defenceman Jonathon Blum's foot in the Ducks' 5-3 victory Friday. Ryan will also miss Game 4 Wednesday in Nashville.

Martin Erat had a power-play goal and an assist, David Legwand and Jordin Tootoo also scored, while Ryan Suter had two assists for Nashville.

Teemu Selanne scored two goals, and Corey Perry had two assists. Matt Beleskey also scored for Anaheim.

Brandon Dubinsky's goal with 1:39 left snapped a tie, and the Rangers' struggling offence woke up enough to beat the Washington Capitals 3-2 yesterday to get New York back into the first-round playoff series.

After the Rangers managed only one goal in two losses at Washington, Dubinsky, Vinny Prospal and Erik Christensen figured out young Capitals goalie Michal Neuvirth to help New York cut the series deficit to 2-1.

Henrik Lundqvist was sharp again, making 24 saves for the win.

New York got 35 shots through on Neuvirth after a combined 47 in the opening two games — 2-1 and 2-0 losses.

Alex Ovechkin had a goal and an assist for the Capitals, 1-4 in a series in which they lead 2-0.

The Rangers have erased only one such deficit to advance.

Game 4 of the Eastern Conference matchup will be at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night.

Goalie makes 7-0 loss to Canada look good

Canada won the game, but Kazakhstan goaltender Daria Obydennova put on a show.

Her 64-save performance yesterday limited the damage as the Canadian women emerged with a 7-0 victory.

"Give her a lot of props, taking that many shots can't be easy," said Canada's Meaghan Mikkelson.

116 Daria Obydennova recorded 116 saves in two games after making 52 in a 5-3 loss to Finland Saturday.

It was Canada's second win a day after opening the women's world championship with a 12-0 win over host Switzerland. Canada concludes Pool B play tomorrow versus Finland.

Jays lose in blowout

Team drops seven of the last 10 games after starting season hot

Jacoby Ellsbury hit a three-run homer, Jarrod Saltalamacchia drove in three runs and Jon Lester pitched a solid six innings to carry the Boston Red Sox to an 8-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays yesterday.

It's Boston's first consecutive victories of the season. The Red Sox began the day 3-10, the worst record in the major leagues, and can win the series against Toronto when Daisuke Matsuzaka faces Ricky Romero in the traditional Patriots Day game today.

Lester gave up one run, six hits and three walks while striking out five. He was pulled with two on in the seventh after an error by shortstop Jed Lowrie.

Litsch, making his third start since shoulder surgery last August, allowed six runs — four earned — on eight hits, while striking out five and walking one in six innings.

Grizzlies stun Spurs for first playoff win

GRIZZLIES	SPURS

The Memphis Grizzlies own the first upset of the NBA playoffs, and they made history in the process.

Zach Randolph had 25 points and 14 rebounds, and Shane Battier hit the go-ahead three-pointer with 23.9 seconds left, as the eighth-seeded Grizzlies won the first playoff game in franchise history, 101-98 over the San Antonio Spurs yesterday.

Memphis began the playoffs with the motto "Let's Make History," and needed one game to do it. Sixteen years after their debut in Vancouver, the Grizzlies got their first playoff win in 13 tries.
